cross-cultural field practicum (3-9)

Course Instructor: Grace Kabuye, M.B.A.

Course Description:

This course is designed to give students hands on cross-cultural experience with community development work in East Africa. Students will be exposed to international development and relief programs, have the opportunity to work in cross-cultural work environments, and to contribute meaningfully to their assigned program. Students will begin to assess their own ability to live and work in cross-cultural settings as well as be introduced the challenges faced in the Millennium Development Goals.

Course Learning Objectives:

At the conclusion of this course, each student will be able to:

1. Develop and evaluate personal learning objective.
2. Have hands-on work experience in a productive cross-cultural work setting.
3. Gain a greater understanding of a different culture and its values.
4. Become familiar with various NGO activities and programs in the varied settings in East Africa.
5. Honestly evaluate personal performance and adaptation in a cross-cultural setting.
6. Develop self-confidence and an understanding of experience-based education.
7. Become experienced in journaling and its value in recording personal thought and reflection,
8. Begin to process their role in poverty and choose how they will respond to taking ownership of world poverty, and
9. Articulate their own thought processes and personal believe changes in their understanding of poverty and the role of development work.

cross-cultural field practicum (3-9)

Journaling – Students will be expected to make journal entries a minimum of three times weekly. The entries should include not just circumstances but thoughts and reflections of personal growth and development. Students should also be including personal evaluation of their progress in accomplishing their own learning objective.

Supervisor Field Evaluation – Students will be given blank evaluation forms for their field supervisors to complete. It is the student's responsibility to make sure that these forms are completed by their field supervisor and returned the Regional Director of Academic Programs.

Summary Project – This project is the culmination of the course and will require each student to develop a multimedia presentation or write a publishable magazine article. These projects are a tool to encourage reflection on part of their practicum experience. It is advisable to consider only one topic from their practicum; the entire practicum would be too general. Ideas may include one of the following topics or other topics approved by the Regional Director of Academic Programs. The list of pre-approved topics includes the following:

1. Choose the Millennium Development Goal your practicum assignment most closely addresses and explain how the development program you worked with contributed toward accomplishing this goal. <http://www.un.org/millenniumgoals/>
2. Choose the Millennium Development Goal that you believe is the highest priority for your practicum community and describe how you might begin to address these needs or what programs you believe will most closely fill these needs. <http://www.un.org/millenniumgoals/>
3. Identify what you believe to be the greatest needs in this community and how you believe these needs might best be addressed.
4. Reflect upon how your view or perception of poverty changed as a result of this experience.
5. Evaluate your ability to deal with cross-cultural adjustments and your effectiveness in living and working within a culture different than your own.

Policies and Expectations:

- Students are expected to exhibit professional and respectful conduct throughout their entire practicum experience. This should include courteous attitudes towards others, respecting authority, following instructions, being reliable in task completion and attendance, as well as showing creativity and innovation in the practicum setting.
- Students will show cultural sensitivity in both the community and the practicum environment.
- Students are required to show up promptly at assigned times for all appointments and assignments.
- Dress appropriately as determined by practicum supervisor(s).
- Students will conduct themselves consistently with the Go ED. Africa Lifestyles Agreement which each student has signed.

Academic Integrity and Honesty

Students should practice academic honesty. The faculty will discourage all academic dishonesty, cheating, and plagiarism, and will encourage responsible conduct. The faculty has defined cheating as offering the work of another as ones' own; for example:

- giving or receiving aid during an examination, turning in written work prepared partially or wholly by another
- claiming to have done laboratory work or outside reading that was not completed
- failure to cite sources used in a research paper or oral presentation.

Plagiarism

The faculty is particularly concerned that many college students are tempted to plagiarize. Faculty members are urged to explain carefully the correct methods for fully documenting an author's work. The faculty has defined plagiarism as follows:

- Copying all or part of a theme, examination paper, library reading report, or other assigned written work from another person's production,
- Submitting as one's own, work that was actually done by another,
- Incorporating passages in term papers from a source book without using quotation marks and footnotes to indicate clearly what has been borrowed.
- Using in collateral reports or book reviews the opinion of a professional literary critic – or a campus friend – as though it were one's own original thought, and
- Unauthorized copying of workbook answers of any sort.

Course Placement Process:

The practicum involves many people; it is, therefore, necessary for each student to carry out the following steps to insure proper evaluation and grade reporting:

Prior to departure -- Complete and submit the practicum interest form by the indicated deadline. Write or refine C.V./Resume prior to leaving for Africa, this will facilitate an easier practicum application process.

Upon arrival in the field

- 1 Attend practicum fair for participating African Countries. Each country will present projects and programs taking place within the country and also specific practicum placement opportunities.
- 2 Send applications including CV and learning objective for the three most desired practicum placement opportunities to the Go ED. Regional Director. Specific care should be taken in developing the learning objective and its measurability. This will account for 5% of the practicum grade.
- 3 Students will be notified of their practicum assignments. The Go ED. Regional Director will make contact with the student and the student may begin to become familiar with the details of the practicum.
- 4 On-sight for practicum. Track all field hours on the time sheet including all training sessions, time with staff, travel and time learning about your community. Write bi-weekly journal entries along with evaluations to be completed and signed by immediate supervisors. Journal entries will account for 15% of the grade and field evaluations account for 40%.
- 5 Secure your signed field evaluation form from your field supervisor before leaving your practicum site and give it to the Go ED. Regional Director at your debriefing. Begin writing magazine article and participate in group debriefing sessions.
- 6 Complete and submit your project by email or disc to the Go ED. Regional Director.
